

June 2011 – For immediate release

NEWS RELEASE

NEW APPOINTMENTS AT DRURYS ENGINEERING LTD

Drurys Engineering Limited has made two senior promotions as part of its continued growth and customer service improvement strategies.

Graham Walton has been appointed Head of Operations. He will have overall responsibility for quality, purchasing, delivery and key customer contracts. Graham has been with the company for over 15 years and previously held the role of Head of Quality.

James Buckingham has been appointed Head of Quality and will have day to day responsibility for the quality function. James, who joined the company last year from Lockheed Martin, has a strong background in supply chain quality assurance and is trained to Six Sigma green belt level.

Commenting on the promotions Managing Director Richard Dunn said “quality and customer satisfaction are pivotal to the company’s long term success. As a centre of manufacturing excellence, we are constantly striving to deliver exceptional quality and service to our customers. Graham and James will be responsible for delivering market leading manufacturing services to our customers”.

END

Notes to Editors

On the accompanying picture Graham Walton is on the left and James Buckingham is on the right.

Drurys Engineering manufactures high quality components for the aerospace, defence, oil and gas, and motorsport industries.

Drurys has operated in Hitchin since 2000 and today employs 28 people.

For more information on Drurys Engineering Limited please go to www.drurys.co.uk or contact Sara Dunn on 01462 420123 or email sara.dunn@drurys.co.uk

<http://www.sbac.co.uk/pages/91430300>. <http://www.sbac.co.uk/pages/91430300.asp> world-leading sectors that we proudly represent. ADIS is a trade organisation advancing UK A